Is Secrecy Public Policy?

The question of whether Messrs. Baugh man, Lathrop and Clarke have a right to submit a minority report as members of the grand pury to the court would seem to be decisively settled by the terms of the oath that the Virginia statutes requires to be administered to the grand jury. The oath prescribed by section 3980 of the Code of Virginia is in the following language.

"You shall diligently inquire and true presentment make of ALL SUCH MAT-TERS as may be given you in charge, or come to your knowledge, touching the present service. You shall present no person through prejudice or ill-will, nor leave any unpresentment through fear or favor, but in all your presentments you shall present the truth, the whole truth rather than eradicated. As it was in and nothing but the truth, so help you

Now is it plain that this oath templates more than the finding of the indictments. It contemplates reports along with indictments, for the language is "you shall diligently inquire and and true presentment make of all such matters as may be given you in charge of come to your knowledge, touching the present service," and they are then instructed to "present the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth." That plainly contemplates procedure beyond indictment. It contemplates the grand jury's bringing to the notice of the court all that it thinks material in nt service, and it has been the custom of grand juries in Virginia time out of mind to make reports to the court as well as to find indictments. Each grand juror is sworn to present the "whole truth" of the case, and if the majority are authorized and required to present their idea of the truth of the case, the minority, each one being sworn to present the whole truth must be equally authorized and commanded to present to the court his view of the truth of the case, if his view of it is different from the majority's view of it. Discussion, therefore, as to what may be the law of the case in other States or countries are out of place. The question is what is the law of Virginia, and the law of Virginia is found in this oath, which the statute of Virginia directs each grand juror to take.

It is perfectly plain, therefore, to mind that the Virginia statutes authorize each grand juror to present to the cour whatever in his opinion it is importan the court shall know, even if there be no indictments found, and that the three jurors mentioned had the right to present the minority freport which they brought in, and with all respect to Judge Witt, we think he should have received it, examined it and filed it amongst the records of his court.

It is equally clear to us that the grand jurors themselves had the right to make their report public, but having appealed to the judge, they should abide his de-

If the proceedings of the grand jury are to be kept secret after the grand jury is dismissed, it must be upon the Congressman Swanson, which concluded Fround of public policy, but the Virginia as follows:

Clourt of Appeals decided in the case of Little against the Commonwealth, 25th Trattan, 27), "That a grand juror might be required to give evidence that the statement a witness made upon the trial was different from the statement he had made to the grand jury." That is a Such a frank statement is due to himground of public policy, but the Virginia as follows:

declaration that public policy does not self, to the other candidate, and to the require inviolable secrecy for the proceedings of the grand jury. Puode policy is no moveable feast. It is absolutely one way or the other. If public policy fequires secreey in the proceedings of the grand jury, it requires secrecy, and there can be no disclosure of their proceedings. Public policy can't have a secrecy which is secrecy one day and not secrecy the next. The thing must be secret or it must be open, and when the Court of Appeals held that a grand juror might be required to disclose what had taken place in a certain case that was a ruling that public policy does not require that the proceedings of the grand jury should be secret after it had adjourned. It is only a question of time when the report will be disclosed.

What the people want in the line of their rights they will get sooner or later. It is much to be regretted that there has been any objection raised to its prompt publication.

As to Masterfulness in Men.

The manual of courtship contains few precepts that are more generally accepted as true than that masterfulness is what women adore in a man. No fainthearted, hesitating, doctle or shilly-shallying swain over yet won, or, at least, ever deserved to win, the truly fair lady. The female heart, hedged about as it is with barriers of frigidity and haughtiness, opens only to him who boldly tramples them down as that heart's natural lord and master. All others may keep away and run to seed in bachelorhood. As Robert Louis Stevenson observed, a woman might conceivably prefer not to marry a man who had actually battered her into wedlock, but she would cer tainly want to marry one who was capa-

Some ladies, however, really prefet to be subjected to the actual battering process. Otherwise they can never be sure that their chosen helpmeet is really capable of it. There is, for example, the recent case recounted in a Rome dispatch to a contemporary, of Mrs. Paolina de Ponta, young, beautiful, bewitching and with £300 per year, who had attracted the favorable attention of Salvator Vinciano. Mr. Vinciano, deeming the progress of his suit unsatisfactory, attacked Paolina with a razor and lacerated her check. Paoulna was indignant, and Mr. Vinciano got eighteen months. Upon his release, however, this deter-mined lover, no whit undaunted, blew up Miss de Ponta's house with dynamite killing two horses and a mule. Paolina happily escaped, but Mr. Vinciano was less fortunate. He was haled back to his old cell for another period of eighteen months, at the end of which he at once demonstrated the ardor and unchangeableness of his affection, by falling upon the lady of his heart with a dagger and stabbing her cruelly in the arm. Upon his third release, finding her still undecided, he took a put-shot at her with his rifle and shot away two of her fingers. How far this sec-saw of mutilation and incarceration might have gone we shall never know; for at this point it came over the fair Paolina, in a tender rush, that there was a man in a thousand, whom she truly loved, and the admirably hest wishes. Paolina wanted a master, and it is our decided opinion that she found one. That desire is one touch of the primeval that civilization has evidently veneered the beginning, so is it now. In "The Pagan's Progress," Mr. Gouverneur Morris has made an interesting attempt to picture the life of prehistoric man, but newly evolved from a Simian ancestry. There is a courtship scene in the story in which the over-coy lady's head is well-nigh beaten to a pulp. She resists bravely, but a final crushing blow brings her to her senses. After that, so we read, she only mouned a little, for "know ing that she had found her master, she took a certain pleasure in the blows. In some important respects this lady reminds us strongly of the new Mrs. Vin

A Russian Puzzle.

The Russian peace agents attended church in Portsmouth, N. H., on Sunday, and as a compliment the choir sang No.

And burst upon thee in a cloud of day.
This hymn is usually sung to the tune

A Vile Slander

One of the most notable men in New Hampshire is John Cutler, who keeps summer hotel near Concord. He has fo many years been a prominent figure in State politics, and is regarded by many as a political boss. He has numbered among his personal and political friends such men as Senator Chandler, Senator Hoar and Congressman Sulloway. Whether or not he is a boss, he is at least a prominent politician and an influential factor in New Hampshire politics. All this would not be especially notable of itself, but the fact is that John Cutler is a negro, and has a white wife. He has held political sway in his own realm for twenty years, but a revolt has now come. The younger element in the party demand that he be retired, and a correspondent of the Boston Herald says that their opposition to him is due to race prejudice.

"John Cutler is a fine fellow, a fine man and my friend for many years," said John Worthington Dearborn, Demoomitic member of the legislature, and the only one who ever bent the colored boss, "but the younger element and lots of other Republicans are sors-they don't like to take orders from a colored man, if he was white they wouldn't

This is a slander, and the people of New England should hold the Herald responsible in law. There is no such thing as race prejudice in New England-that terrible sin is confined to the South We appeal to the Boston Transcript and New York Evening Post.

Pension for Widows.

In reply to a question in Queries and Answers, concerning the pension of widows of Confederate soldiers, we falled to state the following provision made in section 7 of the Pension Laws, which

That no application shall be allowed nor shall any aid be given or pension nade, in any case, to any soldier, sailor or marine, or to the widow of any soldier, sallor or marine, under the provisions o this act, where it appears that any such soldier, sailor or marine deserted his command or voluntarily abandoned his post of duty, or the said service during the said war; nor shall any application be allowed, nor any aid given, nor an pension made, to any widow of any sidier, sailor or marine, aforesaid, who shall have been married to any such soldier, sailor or marine AFTER THE FIRST DAY OF MAY, 1888."

From this it will be seen that the widow of a soldier, sailor or marine, who married her husband after May 1st, 1866, is not entitled to a pension.

New Orleans has just inaugurated a great street cleaning campaign. In addition to the paid laborers of the city, thousands of volunteers have gone to work to give New Orleans a thorough scrubbing. The yellow fever scourge is a costly lesson, butt eventually it will do New Orleans good, and the lessen ought to be taken to heart by every other city. The health of the people ought to be a matter of prime consideration from every point of view, and cleanliness means health. Richmond is not likely to have a yellow fever scourge. But other diseases will visit and afflict us if we disregard the laws of health. If we keep the whole city, back yards and all, perfectly clean and thoroughly disinfected, the danger of an epidemic will be reduced to the minimum.

Wanamaker entertained Dr. Booker Washington as his guest at a hotel dinner party on Sunday, and Mr. Vanamaker's daughter walked with Dr. Washington through the dong diningroom to the table. A Chicago lady facetiously bade he husband to go jump in the lake and drown himself, and the man did. It has often been observed before that women are a thought deficient in sense of humor.

Sixteen persons were injured in a row growing out of a beauty contest among girls of an Indiana town. Beauty may be only skin-deep, but some of its consequences can out to the bone.

The court records now show just how Banker Bigelow, of Milwaukee, conducted his stealings. This information would have been worth more eighteen months ago.

The announcement that Russia's special ninister, M. Witte, declined to work on Sunday will be a surprise to those who believed that Sunday was a minister's busy day.

It would appear that Messrs, Gaynor and Greene, the well known tourists, will not return to the States till cool weather. Cotton investigations seem to be slower than cotton growing.

Coal Prices to Go Up.

PITTSBURG, August it.—In its leading editoriat the "Coal Builetim," the official organ of the coal operators, deplores the fact that the consumers of coal have not profited by their experiences of least year, when they were caught napping with insufficient supplies of coal on hand, and sounds a warning that it is probable that conditions will be worse this year unless immediate action is taken.

The editorial says the price of coal is lower than it is likely to be again in a long time, and that while the present conditions are good, the opportunity cannot last a great while. Consumers, as usual, it is pointed out, are buyling only for present needs. Somebody is going to suffer before the winter is over, and it will not be the producers.

EURPKA MILLS, VA., August 14.—The large roller mill belonging to Mr. C. Morgan Hailey and others, and located at Ontarlo, was burned to the ground Sunday night. The fire was first discovered a little after 9.0'clock, and was in the roof of the building, and had made such headway it was impossible to check it with the insdequate means at hand.

As the fire occurred during a severo thunder storm, it is supposed the mill was set on fire by lightning.

About fifty bushels of wheat is all that was saved from the mill.

Mr. Hailey states that there were about two thousand bushels of wheat and corn in the mill, and that the property was insured for five thousand dollars. He estimates the total loss at about ten thousand dollars. This was a first-loss, up-to-date wheat and corn mill, and did a large business. It was built about three or four years ago, and equipped with all the modern machinery. It is understood that a large part of the wheat and corn in the mill, belonged to the farmers in the surrounding country.
